

The British Society of Soil Science (BSSS) was founded in 1947 and is an established international membership organisation and charity committed to the study of soil in its widest aspects. The Society brings together those working within academia, practitioners implementing soil science in industry and all those working with, or with an interest in soils.

Research on soils and enhanced understanding and engagement with soils is essential for agricultural, landscaping, construction, remediation, conservation and archaeological projects, as well as policy direction on critical topics such as climate change.

We promote research and education, both academically and in practice, and build collaborative partnerships to help safeguard our soil for the future. This includes hosting our Annual Conference and Early Careers Conference in Belfast, where those with an interest in soil science can meet to discuss the critical issues relating to soil.

Annual Conference 2023

The British Society of Soil Science and the Soil Science Society of Ireland's Joint Annual Conference 2023 will take place from Monday 4 to Tuesday 5 December in Belfast, with a theme of Soil Management and Monitoring. The packed two-day event, set in the historic Assembly Buildings Conference Centre in the heart of Belfast, will provide delegates with a fantastic opportunity to see the latest research and developments within soil science.

In the advent of Northern Ireland's Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs soil sampling programme and the recent UK Parliamentary Soil Health Inquiry, the consideration of soil and soil management from governments has seen a recent positive surge. Representatives from all UK nations and Ireland will take part in our keynote policy session on Monday 4 December will provide an overview of the key activities being undertaken in each of the nations to monitor and manage soils at a governmental level.

Monday evening will also see delegates gather together for our gala dinner at Crumlin Road Goal, where our 100 delegates will have the opportunity to experience Belfast's history, enjoy a four course dinner with colleagues, and be entertained by traditional Irish music.

The morning of Tuesday 5 December (World Soil Day) will provide an opportunity for delegates to visit field sites in Co Down, where the Northern Ireland Soil Nutrient Health Scheme combines whole-farm soil sampling with high resolution water quality monitoring to create tailored farm nutrient management plans and nutrient runoff risk maps for farmers across Northern Ireland. There will also be a cultural tour of Belfast city.

The exciting and diverse programme will also feature keynote speakers and oral presenters on Tuesday afternoon, and we invite abstract submissions for oral and poster presentations on: nutrient management, soil carbon, water management and quality, technology and innovation and soil health.

This a pivotal time to hear from experts, practitioners and policy makers about the latest developments in soil monitoring and management and engage with fellow soil scientists and policymakers across related disciplines.

Early Careers Conference 2023

The Early Career Conference will take place from Wednesday 6 to Thursday 7 December, immediately after the BSSS Annual Conference. A wide range of Early Career members from academia, industry, and policy will come together for a variety of themed sessions, including talks, posters, and workshops, with social activities including an evening dinner. The packed two-day event, set in the historic Assembly Buildings Conference Centre in the heart of Belfast, will bring together our next generation of soil scientists and researchers and provide a fantastic opportunity to learn, discuss and network!

BSSS is delighted to offer the Early Careers Conference free of charge to Early Career members of the Society, including one night's accommodation. The event is led and hosted by the Early Careers Committee and their focus this year is to provide support and guidance for career pathways into soil science.
